2 or 3 Things I Know About Him

Directed by
Malte Ludin

"2 or 3 Things I Know About Him is – without exaggeration – one of this year's most important German films. In the personal critical examination of current history and family history, the author achieves a new quality in the cinematic treatment of National Socialism."

- Peter Paul Huth, ZDF-3 SAT, April 2005

"An admirable, disturbing, often bemusing job of reminding us how much can change in one generation, and how difficult it can be to know one's father, particularly if he was executed for war crimes in 1947." - Logan Hill, New York Magazine

"Outstanding: Director Malte Ludin portrays his family, which belonged to the elite of the Third Reich. A ghostly and parable-like German family album." - TIP, 7 April 2005

"This film may be the start of a new chapter in the history of film and fascism."

- Georg Seeßlen, EPD-Film, April 2005

Q&A with filmmaker Malte Ludin
January 24, 7:45 pm show

What would your family reminiscences about dad sound like if he had been an early supporter of Hitler's, a leader of the notorious SA and the Third Reich's minister in charge of Slovakia, including its Final Solution? Executed as a war criminal in 1947, Hanns Ludin left behind a grieving widow and six young children, the youngest of whom became a filmmaker. It's a fascinating, maddening, sometimes even humorous look at what the director calls "a typical German story."
